EXPLANATORY NOTE

Policy Background

What is being done and why

A summary of the policy changes contained in this Statement of Changes in Immigration Rules follows:

Approach to ECHR Article 8

The new Immigration Rules will reform the approach taken as a matter of public policy towards ECHR Article 8 – the right to respect for family and private life – in immigration cases. The Immigration Rules will fully reflect the factors which can weigh for or against an Article 8 claim. The rules will set proportionate requirements to how individuals' Article 8 rights should be qualified in the public interest to safeguard the economic well-being of the Isle of Man by controlling immigration and to protect the public from foreign criminals. This will mean that failure to meet the requirements of the rules will normally mean failure to establish an Article 8 claim to enter or remain in the Isle of Man, and no grant of leave on that basis. Outside exceptional cases, it will be proportionate under Article 8 for an applicant who fails to meet the requirements of the rules to be removed from the Isle of Man.

The new Immigration Rules in Appendix FM provide a new five-year route to settlement in the Isle of Man on the basis of family life. Those who cannot meet the requirements of that route can remain in the Isle of Man on the basis of their family life only where it would breach Article 8 to remove them. Such cases can apply for leave under the new rules on a new 10-year route to settlement.

Best Interests of a Child

The new Immigration Rules also ensure that immigration decisions are made having regard to the need to safeguard and promote the welfare of children who are in the Isle of Man. The assessment of the 'best interests of the child' is intrinsic to the proportionality assessment under Article 8, and has therefore also been incorporated into the Immigration Rules.

In assessing the best interests of the child, the question in immigration cases where a child would have to leave the Isle of Man as a consequence of the decision to remove their parent, is whether it is reasonable to expect the child to live in another country. The new Immigration Rules set out a clear framework for weighing the best interests of the child against the wider public interest in removal cases. The best interests of the child will normally be met by remaining with their parents and returning with them to the country of origin, subject to considerations such as long residence in the Isle of Man and exceptional factors.

The new Immigration Rules deal clearly with how to treat a British citizen child or a foreign national child in cases where we would otherwise intend to remove their parent(s) and how countervailing factors should weigh in the decision. There are some circumstances where a child may be allowed to stay on a temporary or permanent basis on best interests grounds. The key test for a non-British citizen child remaining on a permanent basis is the length of residence in the Isle of Man of the child – which the rules set at at least the last seven years, subject to countervailing factors. The changes are designed to bring consistency and transparency to decision-making.

Private Life

The 14-year rule (paragraph 276B(i)(b)), which provides a route to settlement on the grounds of long residence, lawful or unlawful, is being withdrawn. Instead the new Immigration Rules provide that at least 20 years' continuous residence, lawful or unlawful, will, subject to criminality and other criteria, normally be necessary to establish a claim to remain in the Isle of Man on the basis of the Article 8 right to respect for private life. (The 10-year rule (paragraph 276B(i)(a)), which provides a route to settlement on the grounds of continuous lawful residence in the Isle of Man of at least 10 years, will remain).

There are also new provisions allowing an applicant to be granted on the basis of private life after seven years' continuous residence if they are under the age of 18; or if they have spent at least half of their life in the Isle of Man if they are aged between 18 and 24; or if the applicant has less than 20 years' continuous residence in the Isle of Man but has no ties (including social, cultural or family) with their country of origin.

Clear criteria on criminality

The new Immigration Rules set clear criteria for how an applicant's criminality will impact on the scope for them to be granted leave to enter the Isle of Man on the basis of their family life or leave to remain in the Isle of Man on the basis of their family or private life.

Under the new Immigration Rules, an applicant will be prevented from joining or completing the 5- or 10-year family route or the 10-year private life route to settlement, where they are refused under the criminality criteria contained in the rules.

In respect of deportation, the new Immigration Rules provide that:

- Only in exceptional circumstances will private or family life, including a child's best interests, outweigh criminality and the public interest in seeing the foreign national criminal deported where they have been sentenced to a custodial sentence of at least four years.

- Deportation will normally be proportionate where the foreign national criminal has received a custodial sentence of at least 12 months and less than four years, or where the foreign national criminal has received a custodial sentence of less than 12 months and, in the view of the Lieutenant Governor, their offending has caused serious harm or they are a persistent offender who shows a particular disregard for the law. Deportation will not be proportionate where:

- They have a genuine and subsisting relationship with a partner in the Isle of Man (who is a British citizen or settled in the Isle of Man), and they have lived here lawfully for at least the last 15 years (excluding any period of imprisonment) and there are insurmountable obstacles to family life with that partner continuing overseas; or

- They have a genuine and subsisting parental relationship with a British citizen child, or a foreign national child who has lived in the Isle of Man continuously for at least the last seven years, and it would be unreasonable to expect the child to leave the Isle of Man, and there is no other family member who is able to care for the child in the Isle of Man; or

- They have resided in the Isle of Man continuously for at least the last 20 years, or the applicant is aged under 25 years and has spent at least half of his life residing continuously in the Isle of Man (in either case, excluding any period of imprisonment), and they have no ties (including social, cultural or family) with their country of origin.

Amendments to the rules for family members of British citizens and settled persons

Changes to be introduced through Appendix FM include:

- A minimum income threshold of £18,600 for those who wish to sponsor the settlement in the Isle of Man of a partner of non-European Economic Area nationality. A higher threshold will be required for sponsoring any dependent child under the age of 18 in addition to the partner: £22,400 for one child and an additional £2,400 for each further child sponsored before the migrant parent qualifies for settlement.

- Making clear that a relationship with a partner must be genuine and subsisting. The UK Border Agency will be publishing new casework guidance setting out objective factors associated with genuine and non-genuine relationships, to help caseworkers focus on these issues in implementing the new rules. Caseworkers at the Isle of Man Immigration Office will refer to this guidance.

- Increasing the minimum probationary period from two years to five years before the migrant partner can apply for settlement.

- Abolishing the scope for immediate settlement for the migrant partner where a couple have been living together overseas for at least four years. They will need to complete a five-year probationary period for settlement.
- Adult dependent relatives will only be able to apply to settle in the Isle of Man from overseas and will have to demonstrate that, as a result of age, illness or disability, they require a level of personal care that can only be provided in the Isle of Man by the relative here and without recourse to public funds. Uncles and aunts will no longer be able to apply under this route.

Amendments to the rules for PBS dependants

A five-year probationary period for settlement in the Isle of Man will apply to the partner of a migrant with leave under the Points Based System.

Applications from overstayers

The Immigration Rules are being amended to ensure a consistent approach is taken to those who seek further leave to remain after their previous period of leave has expired. From 19 November 2012 those seeking further leave to remain as family members (including settlement) and persons studying or working in the Isle of Man will be refused if they have overstayed by more than 28 days.

There will be a number of safeguards to ensure that the amended rules are fair and proportionate:

- Where an applicant submits an application before their previous period of leave to enter or remain expires, but the application is rejected as invalid after their leave expires, the 28-day window in which the application may be submitted as an overstayer will start from the date on which the application was rejected, rather than when leave expired.

- Caseworkers will continue to have discretion to consider exceptional cases.

Applicants who have overstayed by more than 28 days may provide evidence of exceptional circumstances which prevented them from submitting their application in time.

- A breach of immigration laws by remaining in the Isle of Man beyond a period of leave to enter or remain will not be a determinative factor when considering applications under the following circumstances:

- The applicant has a dependent child under the age of 18 years who is a British citizen or who has lived in the Isle of Man for at least the preceding seven years, and it would be unreasonable to expect the child to leave the Isle of Man; or

- The applicant has lived in the Isle of Man for more than 20 years; or
- The applicant is seeking leave to remain as a victim of domestic violence or as a bereaved partner.

Re-entry ban

Currently migrants who overstay their leave to enter or remain by more than 28 days are subject to a re-entry ban. Where a person subject to a re-entry ban seeks entry clearance or leave to enter, they will be refused, subject to certain exceptions for those seeking entry as family members. The length of the ban varies from one year to 10 years depending on whether the migrant departed from the Isle of Man at their own expense or at public expense, or whether the migrant used deception.

Overstayers are not permitted to work, they have no recourse to public funds, are denied access to free secondary healthcare and their details may be shared with other Government departments to deny access to benefits and services. However, where they fail to depart from the Isle of Man promptly after their leave to enter or remain expires, the re-entry ban can act as a disincentive to depart. Under the changes to the Immigration Rules the ban will only apply where the migrant overstays by more than 90 days. This extended period is to further incentivise voluntary departure and save the significant public expense incurred through enforced removal.

Consultation

The Secretary of State in the United Kingdom consulted publicly on changes to family migration. The consultation “Family Migration – a Consultation” ran from 13 July to 6 October 2011. A summary of the responses has been published on the Home Office website at www.homeoffice.gov.uk

The Secretary of State also commissioned the United Kingdom Migration Advisory Committee to advise on where the minimum income threshold for sponsors of family migrants should be set to ensure they are not a burden on the taxpayer. The Committee published its report on 16 November 2011. The report is available on the UK Border Agency website at www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/sitecontent/documents/aboutus/workingwithus/mac/familymigration-route
