LEAVING THE ISLE OF MAN – NOTES FOR GUIDANCE

- Q7. If you are married or civil partners and jointly taxed and your spouse or partner is leaving on a different date to you, we will normally use the later date to finalise your Isle of Man income tax affairs if this is required.
- Q8 (b). If you are married or civil partners and jointly taxed and one of you remains in the Isle of Man, your Isle of Man income tax status may not necessarily change as this will depend on your personal circumstances. If necessary we will write to you for further information and then let you know whether your status will change or not.
- Q11 (a). You should continue to advise the Division of future address updates for National Insurance & Pension purposes. If you are moving to the UK and have problems with your National Insurance number being recognised, please contact the Division on 685400.
- Q13 (a). If you retain accommodation in the Isle of Man that is available for your or your family's use after your departure we may still consider you as being resident in the Isle of Man for income tax purposes. Under these circumstances further information may be needed to establish your status for Isle of Man income tax purposes.
- Q15 (a). If you are letting or sub-letting a property in the Isle of Man after your departure, the rental income may be subject to Isle of Man non-resident income tax. You will be informed if this is the case and it may also become necessary for you to submit an annual non-resident return form. If so we will send these to you at the appropriate time.
- Q16 (b). Income which arises in the Isle of Man after your departure can be chargeable to Isle of Man Non-Resident income tax. Full details can be obtained from our website under the Non-Resident section –
