

Forthcoming Marine Nature Reserve Events

Presentation in Port Erin about Marine Protected Areas

On Friday 26 February at 8pm there will be presentations at the Erin Arts Centre in Port Erin on Marine Protected Areas in the Irish Sea. The presentation will be given by Dr Emily Hardman from the Irish Sea Conservation Zone Project and will be entitled: "Marine Conservation Zones: helping to secure a healthy and productive future for the Irish Sea". There will also be an update on DAFF's Manx Marine Nature Reserve Project. Everyone is welcome, there will be no charge and refreshments will be served.

For more information about the Irish Sea Conservation Zones project see:

<http://www.irishseaconservation.org.uk/>

Irish Sea Marine Protected Areas Roadshow in Peel

On Tuesday 9 March there will be a chance to find out more about the Irish Sea Conservation Zone project and the DAFF Manx Marine Nature Reserve Project. There will be information displays and representatives of both projects on hand to answer questions, provide information and talk to marine users about their use of the sea. Pop in to the Peel Centenary Centre anytime between 1pm and 6.30pm.

Irish Sea Marine Protected Areas Roadshow in Douglas

On Wednesday 10 March there will be a chance to find out more about the Irish Sea Conservation Zone project and the DAFF Manx Marine Nature Reserve Project. There will be information displays and representatives of both projects on hand to answer questions, provide information and talk to marine users about their use of the sea. Pop in to the downstairs meeting room at Murray House, Mount Havelock, Douglas between 10am and 2pm.