'The Legs of Man'

by BRYAN KNEALE RA

The internationally famous Manx artist Bryan Kneale has generously given permission for a special limited edition of 100 sculptures to be offered for sale by Manx National Heritage. Profit from the sale of 'The Legs of Man' will be used to enhance and develop the Isle of Man's national art collection at the Manx Museum.

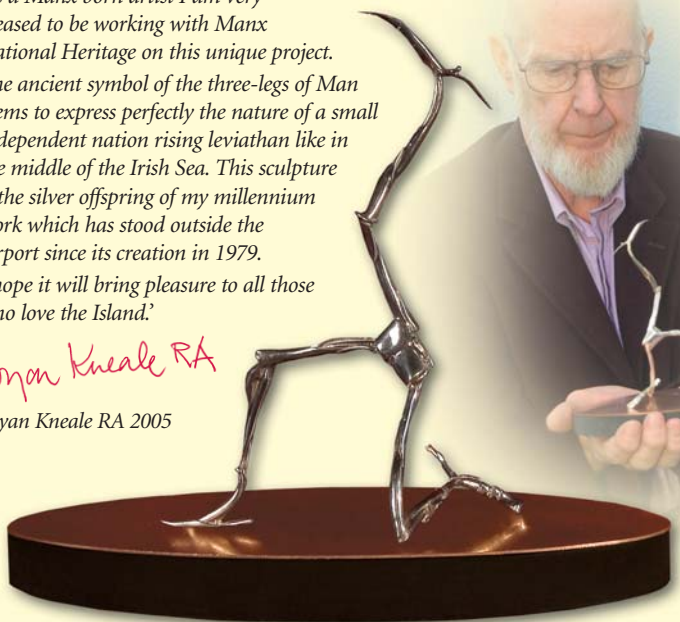

'As a Manx born artist I am very pleased to be working with Manx National Heritage on this unique project.

The ancient symbol of the three-legs of Man seems to express perfectly the nature of a small independent nation rising leviathan like in the middle of the Irish Sea. This sculpture is the silver offspring of my millennium work which has stood outside the airport since its creation in 1979.

I hope it will bring pleasure to all those who love the Island.'
