CROSSBREEDS

If the animal has parents of different breeds it is a crossbred animal. Crossbred animals should be described by the dominant breed characteristics of the animal i.e. What it is most looks like, followed by an X for crossbred. Often the animal most resembles the bull, for example a Charolais bull bred with a Holstein cow would produce a calf best described as a Charolais cross which would be abbreviated as CHX.

If the animal is descended from many breeds the abbreviations BX for beef cross or CON for continental type should be used.
