Appendix 1 - Majority English-speaking countries - nationality

The Isle of Man Immigration Service considers the following countries to be majority English-speaking countries:

Antigua and Barbuda; Australia; The Bahamas, Barbados; Belize; British Nationals Overseas; Canada; Dominica; Grenada; Guyana; Jamaica; Malta; New Zealand; St Kitts and Nevis; St Lucia; St Vincent and the Grenadines; Trinidad and Tobago; United States of America and the British Overseas Territories.

Appendix 2 - Majority English-speaking countries - Academic Qualifications

If you hold an academic qualification equivalent to a Bachelor's degree in the UK which was taught in English, you will not be required to take the English language test.

Where the academic qualification was taught in one of the majority English-speaking countries listed below we will assume it to have been taught in English:

Antigua and Barbuda; Australia; The Bahamas, Barbados; Belize; British Nationals Overseas; Dominica; Grenada; Guyana; Ireland; Jamaica; Malta; New Zealand; St Kitts and Nevis; St Lucia; St Vincent and the Grenadines; Trinidad and Tobago; the UK; United States of America.

Appendix 3 - Academic Qualifications taught in English

Academic qualifications taught in countries other than the UK and the designated English-speaking countries listed above may also be accepted if you are able to provide evidence to show that the qualification was taught in English and that it is recognised by National Academic Recognition Information Centre for the Ecctis as equivalent to a UK Bachelor's degree.

Qualifications awarded outside of the UK must be recognised by Ecctis as equivalent to a UK Bachelor's degree. You must provide a letter from Ecctis stating that your qualification meets this standard.

Master's degrees and PhDs will not be accepted as evidence. This is because Ecctis is only able to assess whether a Bachelor's degree (and not a Master's degree or PhD) was taught in English.

Appendix 4 - The English Language Test

What does the English language test involve?

Suitable English language tests assess your ability to speak and understand English. In the test, you will need to demonstrate a basic command of English (speaking and listening) at a minimum of level B1 of the Common European Framework of Reference. This is an intermediate level, which is judged to require 300 hours tuition for most learners. Someone assessed at level B1 can understand the main points of clear standard input on familiar matters regularly encountered in work, school, leisure etc.

You will not need to demonstrate your reading and writing skills. The Immigration Service will accept English test certificates at levels above B1 of the CEFR and those with reading and writing as well as speaking and listening, as long as they are on our list of acceptable tests and approved test providers.

Where can you take the test?

You can find our list of acceptable tests and approved test providers via this link: <https://www.gov.uk/guidance/prove-your-english-language-abilities-with-a-secure-english-language-test-self>

Only tests on this list taken with the approved test providers will be accepted as evidence for the English language requirement.

Booking the test

To book the test, contact the test centre directly. Contact details can be found on the list of approved test providers. If you have a disability, the test centre may be able to provide the test in a format to meet your particular needs. Tell the centre about any such needs when you book the test - and also about any medical condition in case it affects the amount of time you need for the test.

Appendix 4 - The English Language Test (continued)Is there a charge for the test?

Yes. The cost of the test will vary according to your test provider . You will need to pay for your own English language test. The test provider will be able to advise you on the cost of the test and methods of payment accepted.

Taking the test

At the test centre you will be asked to confirm your identity by producing your passport or national identity document.

The test result

Your test provider will provide you with the results of your test. You should contact your provider for details on the waiting time for the results of your test.

What if you fail the test?

If you fail the test, you can retake it any number of times. You will have to pay the current fee every time you take it.

What if you can't pass an English language test before applying for indefinite leave to remain in the Isle of Man?

If you cannot obtain the relevant qualification before submitting your application for indefinite leave to remain in the Isle of Man, and you are not exempt from taking the test, you will not qualify for indefinite leave to remain in the Isle of Man.

If you apply for indefinite leave your application will be refused without any refund of the application fee.
