

The Red Planet

Yawning, I awoke from my twenty years of hibernation, I was stretching and flexing my muscles because twenty year without moving is strange and made my muscles weak and fragile. I was Commander Johnny Seymour of the Space Pioneering Expedition travelling to The Red Planet.

My colleagues didn't awake from the hibernation until two months later. They awoke while I was making scrambled eggs, I made extras daily in case they woke up but they didn't wake up until today. It had been four months twenty-four days and thirteen hours since my hibernation ended but i still felt groggy because I forgot to exercise. After they woke up, I gave them a hearty breakfast.

Two months later, we were all fit enough to go to Mars, we also contacted Earth to see them again. My family were far older than I remembered them to be, they had wrinkles, everyone of them. I soon remembered that I had hibernated for twenty years. A tear started to form in my eyes ...