Description of series:

This collection contains the records of the Isle of Man Ballamona Hospital since the 19th century to the middle 1990's when the service, as a formal hospital, was closed by the Department of Health and Social Security, giving space to the new Noble's Hospital. The records of Ballamona Hospital provide an important source of information for the history of mental health care on the Island.

This collection is also an important tool for family history research, as the entirety of the patients' case files appear to have survived and have been transferred to the Isle of Man Public Record Office (IOMPRO). From these records, it is possible to know where and with whom the patient was residing before entering the Hospital, for what reasons they entered the Hospital, how many times they were institutionalised, if they had visitors and additional medical care, such as blood tests or dental procedures.

Among the records, it is also possible to find personnel files from members of staff, which can provide details of the hospital's nursing staff, their qualifications, where they studied, their previous jobs, as well as information on the doctors and psychologists that worked and developed their practice in the institution.

Some other records in this collection are minutes, early papers that predate the Lunatic Asylum, visitors registers, Hospital's estate management and photographs.

Administrative History:

The Isle of Man's care for people experiencing mental health problems was called to the attention of the public in 1794 when David Robertson, author of 'A Tour Through the Isle of Man, to Which is Subjoined a Review of the Manx History' published his book.

Only much later, in 1865, limited mental health care provision was made on the Island, converting and reserving a space in Castle Rushen. At the time, the castle was being used as the Island's prison. This provided a place to house people whose family could not care for them, but it did not offer the medical treatment, conditions or attention that was seen as needed and was increasing throughout the United Kingdom at the time.

The Lunatic Asylum Act of 1860 established the legal basis for the construction and operation of a publicly-funded residential asylum on the Isle of Man to care for the mentally ill. Land was purchased in the Strang area of Braddan for the construction of the main asylum, which was designed by architect J. H. Christian. It opened to its first patients in June 1868. In the interim, a temporary asylum had been operating in a former farm building in Oatlands, Santon, since 1864.

This provisional asylum was assessed and, based on this visit, there were recommendations made on how to improve the patients' quality of life and the conditions that the new building should have in consideration to its structure. It would be the first of various assessments made through the institution's life that targeted improving the buildings to provide better conditions for people with mental health problems.

Changes were made to the building throughout the 20th century and the institution changed name twice to adapt and reflect the changes in how mental health was perceived. The Lunatic Asylum became the Isle of Man Mental Hospital in 1934 and Isle of Man Ballamona Hospital in 1955.

The Asylum was managed by the Lunatic Asylum Board from its establishment until 1948; during this time, it was funded by rates raised from Island residents. In 1948, the Manx National Health Service was launched and it assumed responsibility for running the Mental Hospital while it continued to be funded from the revenue of Government-levied taxes.

In the 1960's the Hospital saw its last major alterations with the construction of new wards. A new Medical Superintendent, Dr W. R. Costain brought patient care up to date with the medical practice of the time, prompting changes in the way patients were treated and cared for.

In 1992, Tynwald approved the principle of using the Ballamona Hospital estate as the site for the Island's main hospital. Accordingly, in 1998, the original main block of the Asylum was demolished to make way for the new Noble's Hospital installations.

By this time, changes to the way in which the Mental Health Service treated many conditions enabled the majority of patients to live in the community instead of a specialised centre.

Custodial History:

The records were transferred to the Isle of Man Public Record Office in a number of consignments from 1996 to 2011 under section 3(8) of the Public Records Act 1999. Most were received directly from Ballamona Hospital or the Isle of Man Mental Health Services. The records were fully transferred to the Isle of Man Public Record Office under section 3(4) of the Public Records Act 1999 on 5 August 2015.

Appraisal:

Appraisal was carried out by the Department of Health and Social Security - Mental Health Services before transferring the records to the Isle of Man Public Record Office.

Related records at the Isle of Man Public Record Office:

The Lunatic Asylum Act 1860, which enabled the Isle of Man Government to levy a one-off tax on all Manx property owners to build the hospital, translated into a series of plans of the land owned. These plans were collected in 30 volumes and form the 'Asylum plans', an important collection for the knowledge of land ownership on the Island. These plans are available to view at the Isle of Man Public Record Office. A guide can be found here: <https://www.gov.im/media/1350014/tithe-and-asylum-plans.pdf>

S22/3/1 SubSeries	Patient Admission Papers: Isle of Man Lunatic Asylum and its successors	Records related to the admission of patients to the Hospital. A patient could be sent to the Hospital by court order and on the request of their family due to lack of means to take care of them. A patient could also self-refer themselves to the Hospital. These records - reception orders, letters, admission forms and guardianship forms - state how and why the patient entered the institution.	12 archive boxes; 2 bankers boxes	1864-1949	Partially closed
S22/3/1/1 SubSeries	Isle of Man Mental Hospital: Reception Orders	Reception orders were the papers necessary for the admission or transfer of a patient to the Lunatic Asylum and its successors under the original legislation. All patients prior to 1924 would have had a reception order, as would the majority of patients thereafter. A reception order was completed by a Justice of the Peace, directing the Asylum to receive the named patient. Details recorded in the order include the patient's personal and medical history, details of physical and mental condition, place of abode, age, marital status and occupation, as well as a medical certificate signed by a doctor. Some reception orders are marked 'Private Patient'. This indicates that the costs of treatment and care for these individuals were paid privately, rather than by local or national authorities. This is not a complete list of reception orders held by the Isle of Man Public Record Office, only those that are open to the public are listed in the catalogue.	4 archive boxes catalogued; 6 archive boxes and 2 bankers boxes un-catalogued.	1864-1949	Partially closed

Accession numbers:

A35; A87

Extent:

94 boxes

Creator:

Isle of Man; Ballamona Hospital; 1864-1998?

Description of series:

This series gathers records regarding the Isle of Man Lunatic Asylum and Ballamona Hospital's patients' health care during their stay in the institution.

It comprises:

- case books from the early period of the hospital, which are organised by patient admission and indexed at the back. They depict the patient's condition on arrival and the treatment they undertook during their stay in the institution;

- Head Nurses' reports that describe any outstanding circumstances relating to patients during their shift, and cover all wards of the Hospital;

- registers of mechanical restraint and seclusion;

- Medical Superintendent discharge recommendations;

- a notebook that records sick patients and when their family was contacted regarding the situation;

- patients' case notes that are organised by date of death since the late 1960's and that reflect the continuation of the case books series.

Appraisal:

The series S22/4/6 to S22/4/22, nurses' reports were subject of appraisal before transfer to the Isle of Man Public Record Office to sample records reflecting each decade.

Alternative/previous reference numbers:

C342; C502; C531

Accession number:

A35

Extent:

21 plans

Creator:

Isle of Man; Ballamona Hospital; 1868-1998?

Description of series:

This series contains a range of plans depicting accommodation for mental health patients and/or the staff who cared for them on the Isle of Man, including the temporary asylum at Oatlands, the original Main Block of the Lunatic Asylum, later the Mental Hospital at Braddan, and the neighbouring Home for the Poor.

Many of the plans depict intended alterations, changes and additions to the properties, some of which may not have been executed.

Arrangement of series:

These have been catalogued in the original order of the listing of C342; plans from C531 added to the end of the sequence as discovered.

Plans with reference numbers S22/9/19, S22/9/20 and S22/9/21 were added to the catalogue in the order they were found in other consignments or from posterior meetings.
