Administrative History: The Isle of Man Meteorological Office (Ronaldsway Met Office) was opened by the UK Air Ministry as a method to support aviation, as part of a series of weather observation stations at Royal Air Force or Naval Stations throughout the United Kingdom.

The Isle of Man Met Office opened on 7th May 1946 in a barn southeast of Ronaldsway Airport. Some weeks later it was moved to the first floor of its control tower (which was demolished in 2012), starting its daily registers on the 24th July of the same year. In 2011 the office moved to Viscount House adjacent to the terminal building.

The weather readings were done manually, with an officer reading temperatures from the Stevenson screen on the airfield. These observations were completed at every hour of the day and night, 365 days a year and written observations were completed hourly until 1995, albeit with a gradual increase in technology as digital remote reading temperature sensors and laser cloud base recorders were introduced. Since 1995 the observations have still been completed, but are now printed via a computer rather than in ink on paper registers.

The Met Office, in administrative terms, moved from the Air Ministry to the Isle of Man Airports Board authority in 1965 and subsequently to the Isle of Man Department of Infrastructure, which allowed a closer relationship with the Island.

Today, the Island's Met Office has access to United Kingdom's Met Office computer weather models as well as information from other National Weather Services around the world, with forecasters at Ronaldsway interpreting the data to be used locally. These forecasts, observations and warnings are important for aviation, but also for the rest of the Island and users of its coastal waters. The forecasts are available via website, and by telephone with the information produced helping many people on a daily basis. Whether that is something simple like whether to wear a coat or hang the washing out today, the shipping companies to decide whether to sail or not, or for the emergency services and highways division to decide on response levels to a major flooding or storm event.

Custodial History: Part of these records were stored at Ronaldsway Airport by the Isle of Man Met Office until they were transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(8) of the Public Records Act, 1999 in October 2004. In May 2017 all records were fully transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(4) of the same Act.

Accruals: Accruals are expected to all series in this catalogue.

Daily weather and observations registers

1946-1992

Alternative/previous reference numbers: C377, C383, C446

Accession number: A84

Extent: 525 volumes

Creator: Isle of Man; Ronaldsway Meteorological Office; Department of Infrastructure: Airport Division; 1947-present

Description of series: This series collects the daily registers made by the Isle of Man Ronaldsway Meteorological Office. The records consist of specially printed notebooks varying in size and type of information they register through time. The observations were registered by trained personnel and taken to the Met Office station located in Ronaldsway Airport.

These records provide data for a range of weather conditions such as atmospheric pressure, temperature, rainfall, clouds' size, wind direction or state of sea and ground. This information was recorded hourly and is organised through two pages in the notebooks. The first covers the morning period from midnight to midday and the second from 1 pm to midnight.

The volumes are heavily coded, but it is possible to find 'decodes' at the beginning of each volume starting on S81/121, which change according to international uniformisation agreements in later volumes.

Custodial History: Part of the records in this series were stored at Ronaldsway Airport by the Isle of Man Met Office until they were transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(8) of the Public Records Act, 1999 in October 2004 and December 2005. In May 2017, the total of these records was fully transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(4) of the same Act.

Arrangement of series: These records are arranged in the original order they were created. A new reference code was given after transfer to the Isle of Man Public Record Office, but the original numbering was preserved in the field 'Alternative Reference Number' (Alt. Ref. No.) This original reference is organised in an ascending numbering and, many times, a reference to the month and year the volume belongs to. The reference is not consistent in every volume. This numbering was written on a small piece of paper and taped to the spine of the volume; due to glue degradation over time, many have detached and are missing.

Barograph charts

1946-1985

Accession number: A84

Extent: 40 bundles

Creator: Isle of Man; Ronaldsway Meteorological Office; Department of Infrastructure: Airport Division; 1947-present

Description of series: Barograph charts are a type of autographic record produced by a barograph machine that registers changes in atmospheric pressure in a purpose made paper form wrapped around a drum.

They contain the original data that is registered in daily weather and observation registers (please see S81-Daily weather and observation registers).

Each sheet records half a week of data and they have a control header to note the latitude, longitude, the date the sheet was put on and removed from the machine and the week number.

Custodial History: The records in this series were stored at Ronaldsway Airport by the Isle of Man Met Office until they were transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(4) of the Public Records Act 1999 on May 2017.

Arrangement of series: These records are arranged in the chronological original order they were created.

Physical description: These are oversized records. Each bundle contains the records for 1 year, except for S83/1 because it matches with the opening of the Met Office in the Isle of Man.

They were left in their original envelopes to allow ease of handle without damaging the records.

Thermo-hygrograph charts

1955-1969

Accession number: A84

Extent: 15 bundles

Creator: Isle of Man; Ronaldsway Meteorological Office; Department of Infrastructure: Airport Division; 1947-present

Description of series: Thermo-hygrograph charts are a type of autographic record produced by a thermo-hygrograph machine that constantly registers temperature and humidity in a purpose made paper form wrapped around a drum.

They contain the original data that is registered in daily weather and observation registers (please see S81-Daily weather and observation registers).

Each sheet records half a week of data and they have a control header to note the latitude, longitude, the date the sheet was put on and removed from the thermo-hygrograph and the week number.

Custodial History: The records in this series were stored at Ronaldsway Airport by the Isle of Man Met Office until they were transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(4) of the Public Records Act 1999 on May 2017.

Arrangement of series: These records are arranged in the chronological original order they were created.

Physical description: Records kept in their original envelopes. Each bundle contains 2 envelopes, 1 for temperature charts and the other for humidity charts.

There is presence of humidity damage in all records and they should be handled with care.

Monthly weather summaries

1917-1962

Alternative/previous reference numbers: C377

Accession number: A84

Extent: 3 boxes

Creator: Isle of Man; Ronaldsway Meteorological Office; Department of Infrastructure: Airport Division; 1947-present

Description of series: Cards with handwritten monthly summaries of the United Kingdom, Northern Ireland's weather between January 1917 and December 1962 produced by the Isle of Man Met Office to record weather in the area received from the UK Met Office.

Each card provides weather data regarding rain, temperature and sunshine across the country, including a map of the archipelago with illustrations of wind, pressure and depressions. It includes synoptic notes and climatological notes. The borders show coded cut in information with more details on the weather for the month they represent.

Custodial History: These records were stored at Ronaldsway Airport by the Isle of Man Met Office until they were transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(8) of the Public Records Act, 1999 in October 2004. In May 2017 they were fully transferred to the IOMPRO under section 3(4) of the same Act.

Arrangement of series: Records kept in their original index boxes.

Records are organised by month, extending from 1917 to 1962.

Months are organised in each box as following:

- Box 1 (S87/01) - Dec 1917-1962, Jan 1917-1962, Feb 1917-1962, Mar 1917-1962;
