EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This note is not part of the Regulations)

Following the introduction of the Civil Partnership Act 2011 (c.2), these regulations apply the Police Pension (Amendment) Regulations 2006 (SI 2006/740) to the Island. Consequently the schedules to the Police (Injury Benefit) Regulations 2010 and the Police Pensions Regulations 2010 are amended so the references to a civil partner, civil partners or to civil partnerships are treated as never having been omitted, The application of this statutory instrument also inserts such references to Police Pension Regulations 1987 (SI 1987/257), which were applied to the Island in 1991.

These Regulations also apply to the Island, with modifications, the Police Pensions (Amendment) Regulations 2010 (SI 2010/431) which –

- (a) allow the Department to disapply the regulation which limits the size of lump sum for which Police Officers with less than 30 years' service can commute his or her pension, in the limited circumstances where the officer retires one day before reaching 30 years' service, and below the age of 50; and
- (b) amend the Police Pension Regulations 1987, The Police Pensions Regulations 2006 and the Police (Injury Benefit) Regulations 2006 to enable a party to a medical appeal to recover from the other party any expenses incurred as a result of the cancellation or postponement of an appeal hearing where the cancellation or postponement occurs less than 22 days before the hearing date, and is the fault of that other party.

Regulation 4 of these regulations consequentially amends paragraph 10 of Schedule 2 of the Police Pensions (Old Scheme) (Amendment) Regulations 2010 so that Officers on Maternity leave can pay contributions whilst they are in receipt of Maternity Allowance.

Regulation 5 of these regulations consequentially omits paragraph 14(1) of the Schedule to the Police Pensions Regulations 2010 (SD 98/10), correcting an error in those regulations. Police Officers of any rank may voluntarily retire after the date they achieve 55 years of age.
