[Subs (4) added by Trade Unions (Amendment) Act 1995 s 2.]

2 Registration of trade unions and employers' associations

(1) The Registrar General shall maintain a register of trade unions and a register of employers' associations in the prescribed form.

(2) In relation to every registered trade union or employers' association the register shall include the following particulars-

(3) Any 7 or more members of a trade union or employers' association, or any official of the union or association duly authorised for the purpose, may apply to the Registrar General for registration of the trade union or employers' association.

(4) Any such application shall be in the prescribed form and include the particulars specified in subsection (2), and shall be accompanied by the prescribed fee and a copy of the rules of the trade union or employers' association, signed by the applicants.

(5) In the case of a United Kingdom union, the application shall include an undertaking by the union to comply with any order, award, injunction, direction or other judgment (whether interim or final) in any proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction in the Island to which the union is a party.

(6) If the Registrar General is not satisfied that the applicants are duly authorised to apply for registration or, where subsection (5) applies, to give the undertaking required by that subsection, he shall refuse to register the trade union or employers' association, and shall notify the applicants in writing of the ground of refusal.

(7) If the Registrar General is satisfied that-

(a) the purposes of the trade union or employers' association are unlawful; or

(b) the application is not in accordance with this section or regulations; or

(c) the name of the trade union or employers' association is the same as the name by which another existing trade union or employers' association has been registered, or so nearly resembles such a name as to be likely to mislead any person;

he shall refuse to register the trade union or employers' association, and shall notify the applicants in writing of the ground of refusal.

(8) Subject to subsections (6) and (7), the Registrar General shall enter the trade union or employers' association in the appropriate register, and shall issue to the applicants a certificate of registration in the prescribed form.

(2) Where the Registrar General refuses to register an organisation under subsection (1), he shall certify in writing that, on the information provided to him in the application for registration and in any representations made under that subsection, he is satisfied that the organisation is not a trade union or an employers' association, as the case may be.

- (3) There shall be annexed to a certificate under subsection (2) a certified copy of-

(4) The Registrar General may, after considering representations in accordance with subsection (1), refer to the High Court the question whether an organisation is a trade union or an employers' association, as the case may be; and on a reference under this subsection the High Court may, after giving the applicants and any other persons appearing to the Court to be interested an opportunity to be heard, direct the Registrar General to register or not to register the organisation and, where appropriate, to issue a certificate under subsection (2).

(b) on any amendment of the rules of the union or association.

(2) Section 2(4) and (6) to (8) applies to an application under this section as it applies to an application for registration of a trade union or employers' association, except that a copy of the rules need not accompany an application under subsection (1)(a).

[Subs (3) repealed by Trade Unions (Amendment) Act 1995 s 1.]

4 Cancellation of registration

(1) The Registrar General may cancel the registration of a trade union or employers' association-

(ii) that the purposes of the union or association are or have become unlawful,

or
(iii) that the union or association has committed an offence under section 3(3),

or
(iv) in the case of a United Kingdom union, that the union has failed to comply with an undertaking under section 2(5), or

(vi) that the union or association has ceased to exist.

(2) Not less than 2 months before cancelling the registration of a trade union or employers' association the Registrar General, except where he is satisfied that it has ceased to exist, shall notify the union or association of his intention to do so, stating the grounds for so doing.

5 Appeals

(1) Any person who has made an application to the Registrar General under section 2 or 3 may appeal to the High Court against the refusal of the application; but no appeal shall lie against the refusal of an application pursuant to a direction under section 2A(4).

(5) Where a trade union or employers' association consists of branches or sections, then-

(a) any duty under this section falling upon the union or association in relation to a branch or section shall be treated as having been discharged to the extent to which a branch or section discharges that duty instead of the union or association;

(b) any duty under this section falling upon a branch or section by reason of its being a trade union or employers' association shall be treated as having been discharged to the extent to which the union or association of which it is a branch or section discharges that duty instead of the branch or section.

12 Liability of unregistered union or association induced a person to break a contract (other than a contract of employment) or to interfere with its performance where-

(a) one of the facts relied on for the purpose of establishing liability is that the union induced another person to break his contract of employment or to interfere with its performance; and

(b) by virtue of subsection (1), nothing in section 11 would prevent the act or inducement referred to in paragraph (a) from being actionable in tort.

(3) For the purpose of subsection (1), an act shall be taken as having been done with the support of a ballot if, and only if,-

(a) the trade union, after notifying an industrial relations officer of its intention to do so, has held a ballot in respect of the strike or other industrial action in the course of which the breach or interference referred to in subsection (1) occurred;

(b) the majority of those voting in the ballot have answered 'Yes' to the question specified in paragraph 2(2)(a) or (b), as the case may be, of Schedule 1;

(c) the first authorisation or endorsement of any relevant act, and (in the case of an authorisation) the act itself, took place-

(i) after the expiry of 7 days beginning with the day on which the result of the ballot was notified to an industrial relations officer; and

(ii) before the expiry of the period of 5 weeks (or, where a direction is given under subsection (5), 6 weeks) beginning with that day; and

(d) Schedule 1 has been satisfied in relation to the ballot.

(4) In subsection (3)(c) a 'relevant act' is any act (done in the course of the action mentioned in subsection (3)(a)) of inducing a person to break his contract of employment or to interfere with its performance; and an 'authorisation or endorsement' of a relevant act is an authorisation or endorsement of the act which, by virtue of section 20, causes the act to be taken, for the purposes mentioned in that section, to have been done by the trade union.

(5) Before the expiry of the period of 7 days specified in subsection (3)(c)(i) in relation to any ballot, an industrial relations officer may direct that the period shall be extended by a further period of 7 days; but no more than one such direction may be given in relation to any one ballot.

(6) In this section any reference to a breach or interference occurring in the course of a strike or other industrial action includes a reference to a breach or interference which, taken together with any corresponding action in relation to other contracts of employment, constitutes that action.

(7) A ballot shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section merely on the ground that the members of the trade union voting in the ballot include members whose place of work is in a country or territory outside the Island, but any vote by such a member shall be disregarded for the purposes of this section and Schedule 1.

(8) For the purposes of this section 'contract of employment' includes any contract under which one person personally does work or performs services for another.

14 Ballot in essential services

(1) The Governor in Council may by order designate the supply of any goods or of any service for the purpose of this section, if it appears to him that the disruption by industrial action of that supply is likely-

(a) to deprive the community of the essentials of life, or

(b) to endanger the life, health or personal safety of the whole or any part of the community; and in this section 'essential service' means a supply designated by an order under this subsection.

[Para (b) substituted by Trade Unions (Amendment) Act 1995 s 5.]

(2) An order under subsection (1) shall not have effect unless it is approved by Tynwald.

(3) Subsections (4) to (8) apply to a trade dispute (whether existing or apprehended), some or all of the parties to which are engaged in an essential service.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), the Governor in Council may at any time direct, in relation to a trade dispute to which this subsection applies and which is specified in the direction, that section 13(3)(c) shall have effect with the substitution for sub-paragraphs (i) and (ii) of-

(i) after the expiry of a period beginning with the day on which the result of the ballot is notified to an industrial relations officer and ending on the notification to the trade union of the decision of a court of inquiry under section 3A(3) of the Trade Disputes Act 1985; and

(ii) before the expiry of the period of 6 weeks beginning on that day; and'

(5) A direction under subsection (4) may not be given in relation to a trade dispute if the Governor in Council is satisfied-

(a) that all the parties are engaged in negotiations with a view to settling the dispute, and

(b) either-

(i) that none of the parties is likely to resort to industrial action in the course of the dispute; or

(ii) that industrial action in the course of the dispute is not likely to cause such disruption as will have the effect mentioned in subsection (1).

(6) If it appears to the Governor in Council that-

(a) industrial action by some (but not all) of the parties to the dispute who might take such action, or

(b) industrial action of one kind (but not of another kind), would be likely to cause such disruption as will have the effect mentioned in subsection (1), a direction under subsection (4) may be expressed to apply in relation to some (but not all) of those parties, or to industrial action of one kind (but not of another kind), as the case may be.

(7) A direction under subsection (4) shall not apply in the case of a ballot where the cooling-off period has expired before the direction is notified to the trade union in question, but without prejudice to its effect in the case of a subsequent ballot.

In this subsection 'the cooling-off period', in relation to a ballot, means the period of 7 days referred to in section 13(3)(c)(i), or that period as extended under section 13(5), as the case may be.

(8) If it appears to the Governor in Council that a trade dispute in relation to which a direction under this section has been given has been settled (whether as between all the parties to the dispute or as between some of them), he shall withdraw the direction, either as respects all the parties or as respects some of them, as the case may require.

15 [Inserts section 3A in the Trade Disputes Act 1985.]

16 Industrial action in support of closed shop

Nothing in section 11 prevents an act from being actionable in tort on a ground specified in section 11(1)(a) or (b) where it constitutes, or is one of a number of acts which together constitute, an inducement or attempted inducement of a person-

(a) not to employ, or to restrict the employment of, persons who are not members of a trade union, or of a particular trade union, or of one of a number of particular trade unions, either generally or in any premises, place or undertaking or in any description of work; or

(b) to dismiss any worker, or to take any action against him short of dismissal, or to treat him less favourably than other workers, on the ground that he is not a member of a trade union, or of a particular trade union, or of one of a number of particular trade unions.

17 Secondary action

(1) Nothing in section 11 prevents an act from being actionable in tort on a ground specified in section 11(1)(a) or (b) where one of the facts relied on for the purpose of establishing liability is that there has been secondary action, other than action falling within subsection (2).

(2) Secondary action falls within this subsection only if it is done in the course of such attendance as is declared lawful by section 18-

(a) by a worker employed (or, in the case of a worker not in employment, last employed) by the employer party to the dispute; or

(b) by a trade union official whose attendance is lawful by virtue of section 18(1)(b).

(3) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section there is secondary action in relation to a trade dispute when, and only when, a person-

(a) induces another to break a contract of employment or interferes or induces another to interfere with its performance, or

(b) threatens that a contract of employment under which he or another is employed will be broken or its performance interfered with, or that he will induce another to break a contract of employment or to interfere with its performance, and the employer under the contract of employment is not a party to the dispute.

(4) An act in contemplation or furtherance of a trade dispute which is primary action in relation to that dispute is not secondary action in relation to another dispute.

(5) For the purposes of this section-

(a) 'contract of employment' includes any contract under which one person personally does work or performs services for another, and related expressions have a corresponding meaning;

(b) 'primary action' is such action as is mentioned in subsection (3)(a) or (b) where the employer under the contract of employment is the employer party to the dispute;

(c) an employer shall not be treated as party to a dispute between another employer and workers of that employer; and

(d) where more than one employer is in dispute with his workers, the dispute between each employer and his workers shall be treated as a separate dispute.

18 Picketing

(1) Subject to subsection (2), it is lawful for a person in contemplation or furtherance of a trade dispute to attend-

(a) at or near his own place of work, or

(b) if he is an official of a trade union, at or near the place of work of a member of that union whom he is accompanying and whom he represents, for the purpose only of peacefully obtaining or communicating information, or peacefully persuading any person to work or abstain from working.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply where more than 6 persons attend for that purpose-

(a) at a place of work (other than a place mentioned in paragraph (b)); or

(b) in the case of a place of work which has more than one entrance from a highway or other place to which the public have access, at any such entrance.

(3) If a person works or normally works-

(a) otherwise than at any one place, or

(b) at a place the location of which is such that attendance there for a purpose mentioned in subsection (1) is impracticable, his place of work for the purpose of that subsection is any premises of his employer from which he works or from which his work is administered.

(4) In the case of a worker who is not in employment where-

(a) his last employment was terminated in connection with a trade dispute, or

(b) the termination of his employment was one of the circumstances giving rise to a trade dispute, subsection (1) has effect, in relation to that dispute, as if any reference to his place of work were a reference to his former place of work.

(5) A person who is an official of a trade union by virtue only of being elected or appointed to be a representative of some of the members of the union shall be regarded for the purposes of subsection (2) as representing only those members; but otherwise an official of a trade union shall be regarded for those purposes as representing all its members.

(6) Nothing in section 11 prevents an act done in the course of picketing from being actionable, unless the act is done in the course of attendance declared lawful by subsection (1).

(7) [Inserts section 3A in the Trade Disputes (Regulation) Act 1936.]

19 Protest action

(1) Nothing in section 11 prevents an act from being actionable in tort in any case where-

(a) the trade dispute relates wholly or mainly to the dismissal of, or failure to offer re-engagement to, one or more persons who at the date of dismissal were taking part in a strike or other industrial action, and

(b) every person who took part in the strike or industrial action was dismissed while the action was continuing, and

(c) no such person as is mentioned in paragraph (b) has been offered re-engagement before the earlier of-

(i) the time of the act in question, and

(ii) the expiration of 3 months beginning with the date of dismissal.

(2) In this section-

'dismissal' has the same meaning as in Part V of the Employment Act 1991;

references to the date of the dismissal and to an offer of re-engagement shall be construed in accordance with section 49(4) of that Act.

20 Liability of trade union for industrial action

(1) Where proceedings in tort are brought against a trade union-

(a) on a ground specified in section 11(1)(a) or (b); or

(b) in respect of an agreement or combination by 2 or more persons to do or to procure the doing of any act which, if done without any such agreement or combination, would be actionable in tort on such a ground, then, for the purpose of determining in those proceedings whether the union is liable in respect of the act in question, the act shall be taken to have been done by the union if, and only if, it is to be taken, in accordance with the following provisions, to have been authorised or endorsed by the union.

(2) An act shall be taken to have been authorised or endorsed by a trade union if it was done, or was authorised or endorsed-

(a) by any person empowered by the rules to do, authorise or endorse acts of the kind in question, or

(b) by a principal committee or official of the union, or

(c) by any other committee of the union or any other official of the union (whether employed by it or not), or

(d) without prejudice to paragraph (b) or (c), the registered official of the union.

(3) For the purpose of subsection (2)(c)-

(a) any group of persons constituted in accordance with the rules is a committee of the union; and

(b) an act shall be taken to have been done, authorised or endorsed by an official if it was done, authorised or endorsed by, or by any member of, any group of persons of which he was a member, the purposes of which include organising or endorsing industrial action.

(4) Subsection (2)(b), (c) and (d) applies notwithstanding anything in the rules of the union, or in any contract or rule of law, but subject as follows.

(5) An act shall not be taken to have been authorised or endorsed by the union by virtue only of subsection (2)(c) or (d) if it was repudiated by the appropriate person as soon as reasonably practicable after coming to his knowledge (or to the knowledge of any of them, if more than one).

(6) In subsection (5), 'the appropriate person' means-

(a) where the authorisation or endorsement was given by a person who is, or by a group of persons all of whom are, resident in the Island, either the registered official of the trade union or a principal committee or official of the union;

(b) in any other case, both the registered official of the union and a principal committee or official of the union.

(7) Subsections (5) and (6) apply notwithstanding anything in the rules of the union, or in any contract or rule of law.

(8) Where an act is repudiated-

(a) written notice of the repudiation must be given to the committee or official in question, without delay, and

(b) the union must do its best to give individual written notice of the fact and date of repudiation, without delay-

(i) to every member of the union who the union has reason to believe is taking part, or might otherwise take part, in industrial action as a result of the act, and

(ii) to the employer of every such member.

(9) The notice given to members under subsection (8)(b)(i) must include the following statement-

'Your union has repudiated any call for industrial action to which this notice relates and will give no support for such action.'

(10) A repudiation shall be treated as ineffective-

(a) if, at any time after the purported repudiation, a principal committee or official or the registered official has behaved in a manner which is inconsistent with the purported repudiation, or

(b) if subsection (8) or (9) is not complied with.

(11) A principal committee or official or a registered official shall be treated as behaving as mentioned in subsection (10)(a) if, on a request made to any of them within 6 months of the purported repudiation by a person who-

(a) is a party to a commercial contract whose performance has been or may be interfered with as a result of the act in question, and

(b) has not been given notice by the union of the repudiation, it is not forthwith confirmed in writing that the act has been repudiated.

(12) In this section-

'commercial contract' means any contract other than-

(a) a contract of service or apprenticeship, or

(b) any other contract under which a person agrees personally to do work or perform services for another;

'general secretary' or 'president' means the official of the union concerned who holds the office of general secretary or president, as the case may be, or where there is no such office, who holds the office which is equivalent, or the nearest equivalent, to that of general secretary or president;

'principal committee or official' means the principal executive committee or the president or general secretary of the union;

'principal executive committee' means the principal committee of the union exercising executive functions, by whatever name it is known;

'registered official' means the official of the union whose name is entered in the register pursuant to section 2(2)(b);

'rules' means the written rules of the union and any other written provisions forming part of the contract between a member and the other members (or, in the case of a union which is a body corporate, between a member and the body).

(13) Where an act is by virtue of this section taken as being done by a trade union, nothing in this section affects the liability of any other person in any proceedings in respect of the act.

(14) In proceedings arising out of an act which is by virtue of this section taken to have been done by a trade union, the power of the court to grant an injunction includes power to require the union to take such steps as the court considers appropriate for ensuring-

(a) that there is no, or no further, inducement of persons to take part or to continue to take part in industrial action, and

(b) that no person engages in any conduct after the granting of the injunction by virtue of having been induced before it was granted to take part or to continue to take part in industrial action; and this section applies in relation to proceedings for failure to comply with any such injunction as they apply in relation to the original proceedings.

(15) In any such proceedings as are mentioned in subsection (14) the court, in determining whether or not to grant an injunction against a trade union, shall not have regard to any difficulty in enforcing the injunction by reason of the union being established outside the jurisdiction of the court, or any official or assets of the union being outside that jurisdiction.

21 Limit on damages

[P1982/46/16] (1) Subject to subsection (2), in any proceedings in tort brought against a registered trade union the amount which may be awarded against the union by way of damages in those proceedings shall not exceed £10,000.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply to any proceedings-

(a) for any of the following resulting in personal injury to any person, namely negligence, nuisance or breach of duty;

(b) without prejudice to paragraph (a), for breach of duty in connection with the ownership, occupation, possession, control or use of property (whether real or personal).

(3) The Department of Trade and Industry may by order vary the sum specified in subsection (1), but no such order shall have effect unless it is approved by Tynwald.

[Subs (3) amended by SD321/96.]

(4) In this section-

'duty' means a duty imposed by any rule of law or by or under any statutory provision; and

'personal injury' includes any disease and any impairment of a person's physical or mental condition.

Miscellaneous and supplemental

22 Service of documents

(a) a trade union or employers' association, or

(b) the official of a trade union or employers' association whose name is entered in the register pursuant to section 2(2)(b),

[P1974/52/28] (1) In this Act 'trade union' means an organisation (whether permanent or temporary) which either-
