MINISTERIAL FOREWORD

This plan and these Strategic Priorities set out a clear commitment to our Island's young people and support the aims in the 'Island Plan' and the 'DESC Service Delivery Plan'. The plan identifies some longer term aims and goals but also focuses on the 'here and now' and it's refreshing to hear, see, and be involved in the future shaping of young people's services on the Island.

The Youth Service offers 'Somewhere to go, Something to do, and Someone to talk to' in multiple locations across the Isle of Man during evenings, weekends, and school holidays. This strategy demonstrates a commitment that all young people have access to opportunities that will shape their future and build a healthy, happy, productive Island community.

At times our young people will need support, they will need to be challenged, they need to build trust and respect and they need opportunities. They need to build positive relationships in a setting that is comfortable to them and this is what this plan aims to do. It has never been more important for us to come together and give people of all ages the necessary skills, confidence, and opportunities to achieve potential and make our Island 'a great place to live and work'. Furthermore by providing 'Somewhere to go, Something to do, and Someone to talk to' we will ensure they will be connected with trusted persons within their communities.

Hon Julie Edge MHK

Minister for Education Sport and Culture

WHAT IS YOUTH WORK

The key focus of youth work is, to 'enable young people to develop holistically, to work with them to facilitate their personal, social and educational development, to enable them to develop their voice through engagement and ultimately find their place in society and reach their full potential'.

In practice, this means that the services we provide need to be relevant and attractive to young people meet them where they are, and importantly being responsive to the challenge of an evolving youth culture. This is perhaps what distinguishes youth workers from that of colleagues in more formal education settings; in that the work of the Youth Service is founded in youth work principles which can differ to that of other services. Our aspirations and hopes for young people need to be something that they themselves buy into, and so success is only possible where we have built trusting authentic relationships with them.

To achieve the above is not easy, it takes skill, time, and above all patience. The support provided by the Youth Service on the Isle of Man can be very different depending on the need. Our workers offer fun activity sessions at local clubs, street based youth work from detached teams, challenging anti social behaviour sessions, sporting sessions, and targeted youth work with young people exploring their identities. No matter the form of engagement, the Youth Service puts the best interests of young people first and works with colleagues and partners to ensure young people can access the support and opportunities they deserve.

Despite the challenges, the rewards are great. The opportunity for young people to have easy access to responsible adults who will advocate on their behalf and importantly 'be there' for them can mean all the difference in the life choices that young people make. Having meaningful engagement with young people allows us, as a community, to be proactive and more effective in supporting them as they navigate growing up in an ever-changing world. Ultimately the Youth Service is a tool to engage with our young people, allowing dialogue between generations and providing for them "somewhere to go, something to do and someone to talk to".

PRINCIPLES OF YOUTH WORK

Young people choosing to take part

Utilising young people's view of the world

Treating young people with respect

Seeking to develop young people's skills and attitudes rather than remedy 'problem behaviours'

Helping young people develop stronger relationships and collective identities

Respecting and valuing differences

Promoting the voice of young people

VISION

An Island where all young people feel that they belong, where they are meaningfully engaged and reach their potential

MISSION

The Isle of Man Youth Service exists to give young people somewhere to go, something to do and someone to talk to; supporting them to discover themselves, their aspirations and find their place in their community.
